Railroad Commissioners Will 'Begin Experiments Next Week.

First the Plan of a Smoke-Catching Hood Will Be Tried.

Though the State Railroad Commissioners have not yet agreed on a plan for ventilating the New York Central's tunnel under Park avenue, they have determined to make experiments in ventilating, which may be begun next week, and have practically selected one of the schemes which was suggested to them at the open hearing recently held at the Chamber of Commerce for the first experiment, ing and lighting the tunnel were outlined to the Commissioners, and since that time fully a dozen other suggestions have been made to them in writing by inventors who think they have solved the problem.

Many, too, of those who made suggestions at the public hearing have submitted elaborate detailed plans, explanatory of their schemes, at the Albany office of the Commissioners.

Commissioner Issac V. Baker, 1r., who is in the city to hear, with his fellow-Commissioners, a new application from the Brooklyn and Coney Island Surface Railway Company for an extension of the troller system on its route, was seen at the Brevoort House this morning by an EVENING WORLD reporter.

With reference to the tunnel case," said he, "I can only say that the Commission is constantly at work on it, and it is extremely probable that we will begin an experiment soon-probably next week.

Will the bottom of the hood, will strike the curved top and be deflected into the flues on either side. Through the entire length of these fine will run pipes containing the compressed air, which will be injected into the five and in the direction towards which it is desired to discharge the impurities by means of jets placed at regular intervals.

The creation of such a current of air, it i thought, would generate a suction into the flues of the hood from the atmosphere of the tunnel, which would tend to clean it of any impurities that might escape into it.
